TRAGEDY AT SANDY HOOK - A LAW ENFORCEMENT PERSPECTIVE & LESSONS LEARNED

Since Sandy Hook, the number of Active Shooter events continues to rise and the number of victims also gets higher and higher as the shooters learn from each event. Although tactical training for 1st Responders has also increased and numerous states now require annual practice of school emergency response plans, there often remains a significant gap of time before law enforcement arrives and the threat is located and stopped. Therefore, it is critical that these valuable seconds be minimized, so we must figure out how to Shave Seconds to Save Lives!® This session Dan will share his personal law enforcement perspective and Lessons Learned.
